Chef & Owner, Burdock & Co

For over a decade, Chef Andrea Carlson has left a resounding legacy on Vancouver's dining scene. Her commitment to homegrown ingredients and active support of local food systems has led to strong relationships forged with farmers and growers, including previously unknown producers who have now caught the attention of chefs citywide.

Born and trained in British Columbia, Andrea studied organic farming and landscape design before making her mark on some of the best restaurants in Vancouver. The close connection between food and nature is a foundation of Andrea's culinary philosophy, and she has become a driving force behind the city's locavore movement.

As MICHELIN Star Chef / Owner at Burdock & Co, Harvest Community Foods and Bar Gobo, Andrea's love for the land surfaces in organic, seasonal plates influenced by B.C.'s diverse environments. Her signature style of cooking – delicate, earthy and vibrant – captures the essence of farm-to-table dining and is a tangible reminder of her lasting impact and leadership within the culinary community.
