Welcome. We would love to make you a drink.

(a) THE WATER OF LIFE

Welcome to Botanist, here we cherish nature and the bounty it provides. For centuries, science and nature have been deeply connected through alchemy, discovery, and experimentation. We invite you to join us on this journey as we explore one of the most essential elements of botany: water. Eau de Vie, the water of life.

Crafted in our Cocktail Lab, Creative Beverage Director Grant Sceney and Executive Chef Hector Laguna have designed a multi-sensory experience of flavour, technique, and storytelling. Each cocktail is paired with a curated bite that enhances and evolves the journey with every sip and taste. While each element is complete on its own, together they create a multi-dimensional experience that lingers long after the last sip. Allow the flavours to unfold, transforming your senses in unexpected ways.

(3) WHISKEY — SCOTLAND

HIGHLANDS

The largest region in Scotland means a diverse array of flavours. Whiskies from this region are bigger bodied, and often peated. Malts further inland from the Islands tend to be less peated and more delicate.

(3) WHISKEY — SCOTLAND

Very approachable whiskies; the Lowlands are known for producing light and gentle malts with zero to very little peat: a great way to enter the world of whisky.

SPEYSIDE

A small but important Highland region, Speyside malts are varied and often express aromas of honey and heather.

(10) TEQUILA

The product of Blue Weber Agave is permitted to be produced in five provinces in Mexico. Tequila in its unaged (blanco) state is clean and herbaceous. Once briefly rested in oak (reposado) sharp edges are softened and some oak character is taken on. If fully aged in oak (añejo), tequila exhibits caramel, vanilla, and other oak-driven aromas.
